I just wanna say I'm so so sorry you guys had to go thru this. My daughter passed away in 2008 from SIDS. I know there's absolutely nothing anyone can say to make it any easier. But somehow knowing we'll see our babies again some day makes it a lil easier. Also remember you still have babies here that need you, I kinda pushed mine away and almost lost everything. I'm grateful today for the 3 months I had w/ my baby and will spend every day for the rest of my life loving and missin her, as I'm sure ya'll will too! Just know your babys loved and she's an angel w/ my lil girl now too!

Even though another day passes, I'm sure the pain is still the same. I have no idea how I would cope if I ever lost one of my babies. I am truly sorry for your loss. May God always bless you and your family.

Our prayers are with you at this time of sorrow. She was a sweet little thing that was called back to god to do his work and will be watching over you. We only saw her the one time but all babies are a gift of god. May you find peace in your time of need.
